PREFACE

These family records were collected by Mrs. Ora Tinkham Roberts.

When Mrs. Roberts began this genealogy, some time before 1900, it was intended for her immediate family only, and she did not anticipate its publication. Her interest grew; what had been at first merely an avocation became all-absorbing. The genealogy involved years of work; research in court and church records, deeds, family Bibles, old cemeteries, and the writing of hundreds of letters in long-hand to check and recheck the facts. Mrs. Roberts never lost her enthusiasm for the task she had set for herself, and gradually it became evident to her that the data being compiled would be of interest to others than those in her immediate family.

About 1944, the facts collected were given to Mrs. Janet Wethy Foley for editing, and credit should be given to her for the final form of the genealogy.

Mrs. Roberts was able to read the first typewritten copy of this record a short time before her death at the age of eighty-eight.

Many people have cooperated in the preparation of this book, but Mrs. Roberts would wish to express especial appreciation to Miss Emily Shipman, Mr. Lloyd Grinnell, Mrs. Nellie Tinkham Gilman, and Mrs. Flora Roberts Hill.

If there are errors in the record, those connected with its compilation wish to express their regret. Some family records are known to be incomplete, and it is possible that the memories of people consulted have at times been inaccurate.

Mrs. Roberts would wish sincerely that these records may be continued.

THE EXPLANATION

(PLEASE READ)

There is no arrangement of genealogical material which appears simple to the novice, but the method used in this book will be readily understood, if you will read this explanation and apply it on one family before trying to read the book.

The date immediately following a name,—preceded only by the name of a place is the date of birth and place of birth, if known.

This date is followed by a dash - then name of place and another date. These are always place and date of death. Dates of birth and death being so indicated, the words born and died are omitted. Any variation of this rule has been properly designated.

In order to correctly associate all of the members of any one family, watch carefully the type or designation, for example—

A generation is marked with a Roman numeral — I, II, III, etc.

A, B, C, etc., would mark the brothers and sisters in one family. Each family in that generation would be marked the same way, but would not be confused, because they follow in order. This type is used — WINSOR OTIS CAMPBELL.

1, 2, 3, etc., would indicate the children in each of the families marked A, B, C, and etc. This type is used — Calvin Campbell.

Capitals —WILLIAM HENRY TINKHAM, GEORGE E. TINKHAM — indicate the children in each family marked 1, 2, 3. In each of these subdivisions the family is continued to the present time.

If there is doubt as to the correct interpretation of the records, a study of the dates of birth should readily explain the relation.

The Tinkham Family

Ephraim Tincom, the emigrant ancestor of the Tinkham family in America, wrote his will in 1683, at which time he was a father and grandfather. This was the will—

Know all ye to whom these presence shall come that I, Ephraim Tincom, Senior, of the Town of Plymouth in New England, being at ye date weak of body, but blessed be God of sound and perfect mind with disposing memory, not knowing how soon it may please God to change my temporal life to death, do therefore make these presents to be my last Will and Testament, to continue firm and inviolable in manner and form following.

Imprimis, I will and bequeath unto my dear and loving wife, Mary Tincom, my new dwelling house and housing that is in Plymouth, with the orchard belonging thereunto, and all lands, meadows with ye appurtenances and privileges belonging unto them lying in ye township of Plymouth, Middlebury, Dartmouth or any other place in this colony whatsoever, that belongs to me excepting such lands as I shall particularly dispose of in this will, I give them all as aforesaid unto my wife for her support and comfort for and during her natural life.

Item. I give and bequeath to my son Ephraim Tincom ye hundred acre lot he lives upon in ye Township of Middlebury, joining to ye land of Samuel Wood.

Item. I give and bequeath to my son Ebeneiser Tincom ye other hundred acre lot that joins to my son Ephraim, to them and their heirs forever, with the meadow lands belonging to it, lying in Middlebury Great Meadows.

Item. I give and bequeath to my son Peter Tincom that share of land he now lives on in ye Township of Middlebury, near Whetstone Vineyard Brook, and all ye meadows belonging to it.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my two sons John Tincom and Isaac Tincom that my now dwelling place, housing, lands, orchards, meadows, and all ye privileges belonging to it after their mother's decease, to be equally divided between and their heirs forever.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my daughter Mary Thomson fifty acres of upland which was given me by ye Town of Plymouth, and lies in ye Township of Plymouth, near ye place that is commonly called Momponsett. My will is also that all my wife shall leave at her decease be it goods or chattels, that it shall be divided amongst my seven children, my eldest son to have a double portion. My six guns are already disposed of to my six sons, who have them for proper use.

I will and bequeath unto my dear and loving wife Mary Tincom my debts whatsoever are due and belonging to me, and to pay all my debts that lawfully appear I owe, and I do by these presents appoint and make and ordain my dear and loving wife Mary Tincom to be my sole Executrix of this my last will and testament, to administer upon my said estate, to pay such debts as I owe and receive such debts as are due to me, and to make thereof my son Ephraim Tincom to be helpful to her in ye same, as also that my body be decently buried and to defray ye charge thereof. Thus hoping that this my last will and testament be performed according to ye tenor thereof, I commit my body to ye dust and my soul to ye God that gave it.

By these presents ratifying and confirming my said wife Mary Tincom to be my sole and lawful Executrix, revoking and making void all my former wills written or verbal. In witness whereof I ye aforesaid Ephraim Tincom, Senior, have hereunto sett my hand and seals this seventeen day of January, one thousand six hundred and eighty-three.

Signed, sealed, and delivered to be my last will and testament in presence of William Haskins, Senior.

Jonathan Shaw, Senior.

(Signed) Ephraim Tincom.

Probated June 5, 1685.

NEW PLYMOUTH COURT ORDERS

July 23, 1634—Timothy Hatherly turned over his servant Ephraim Tinkcum to dwell with John Winsloe of New Plymouth, the same indenture to be continued in effect with John Winsloe.

August 2, 1642—Court held before Governor Bradford, 25 acres granted to Ephraim Tinkhame, due for his service by indenture.

September 27, 1642—Ten acres granted to Ephraim Tinkhame, due for his service by indenture.

Ephraim Tincom, born in Ashburton, England in 1616, wrote the foregoing will which was probated June 5, 1685. The adventurous lad when only fourteen years of age was brought to Plymouth, Mass., by Timothy Hatherly to whom he was indentured. Like other ambitious boys of his day he promised in written agreement that in return for his passage to this country and for the care that he received from his benefactor, all benefits from his work were due Mr. Hatherly until he became of age. The Court Order shows that the indenture was later transferred to John Winsloe, and Ephraim Tincom received at least thirty-five acres of land.

Early settlers who came to America in this manner, bringing only courage and ambition and lived to raise a family and acquire an estate, merit our respect and admiration.

Records state that the original Tincom homestead was burned during King Philip's War, and another dwelling was built. In 1896 H. W. Tinkham stated that he lived on the land formerly owned by his ancestor, Ephraim Tincom, and that the land had been continuously in the possession of the Tinkham family.

In early days there were various spellings of the name, but for the sake of uniformity throughout these records, the name will be spelled T I N K H A M — as it is used today.

Bristol County, Mass., records of land transfers—Book 36, page 195. Dec. 1, 1746, Hezekiah Tinkham of Swansea, Mass., transferred land in Dartmouth that came to me from my "father John and joins the land of my brother John".

Book 39, page 408, March 1, 1752 a deed signed in Providence, R. I., of a land transfer in Dartmouth, Mass., Grizel Tinkham as wife of Hezekiah Tinkham releases her right to dower. This deed was witnessed by Peter, brother of Hezekiah Tinkham, and by Sarah, wife of Peter Tinkham.

Mrs. Ora Roberts believed that Daniel Tinkham, born Apr. 30, 1767, was the son of Hezekiah and Grizel, the grandson of John Tinkham, born 1663, and the great grandson of Ephraim Tinkham the emigrant.

Many records of the Tinkham family prior to the time of Daniel born 1767 have been published, but Mrs. Roberts confined her work to the generations which followed Daniel Tinkham and Adah Winsor. This information was obtained from family Bibles, tombstone inscriptions, old letters, and family documents, and is believed to be accurate. The story of the Tinkham family continues now with only the records of the family of Daniel and Adah Tinkham.

In Sept. 1849, Abraham and Chestina Smith sold their farm near Quincy, Mich., where they had spent the first nine years of their married life, loaded their household goods into a covered wagon, and with their four daughters—the youngest three months—started the long and tedious journey to a new temporary home, a little log cabin on the south bank of Grand River near the approach to the present cement bridge in Grand Ledge.

They were the third family to settle on the present site of Grand Ledge, and made this cabin their home until April 1851.

In accordance with a Franchise granted by the State, ABRAHAM SMITH and JOHN W. RUSSELL were to construct a dam across Grand River at this point. The dam and a sawmill were completed in 1849.

Years later a terrible flood washed out the north end of the dam. The debris lodged in a clump of willows growing in the river downstream and formed the beginning of what is now FIRST ISLAND, of the SEVEN.

In 1850 after clearing a site in the solid woods, MR. SMITH erected his permanent home on an 80 acre farm one mile farther West. It was in this home (now 801 West Jefferson St.) that the first Grand Ledge School was taught for one week in May 1851, then moved into the completed school house. Nine pupils from five families attended including MARTHA and ETHALIN SMITH.

The first Grand Ledge sermon was also preached in this home, which has been occupied continuously as a residence since it was built, one hundred years ago.

The following is copied from a letter written Feb. 13, 1902, by Morris A. Tinkham in East Shelby to his daughter, Ora Tinkham Roberts -- "Uncle Zenas, born Apr. 18, 1805, married Loveday Cook and stayed on the old homestead in Spafford, Onondaga County, N. Y., and took care of his parents as long as they lived, the same as your father did on this old homestead.

Grandmother (Adah Winsor Tinkham) died in Onondaga County, and Capt. Daniel Tinkham moved with his son Zenas and family to Summerville, Cass Co., Mich. What makes me remember the particular circumstances was that Horton Whiting and I went to visit Uncle Zenas that fall at Spafford.

After two of Uncle Zenas' hired hands had finished their day's work in digging potatoes, and another had picked them up and drawn them into the cellar, Uncle Zenas showed me the largest heap of potatoes, western reds, that I ever saw dug by two men in one day — two hundred bushels in one pile. It was a beautiful sight.

Another reason that I remember, more impressive still, Grandfather Tinkham's old farm on Spafford's side hill, is that Uncle Zenas had two daughters about my age — Mary and Martha.

Uncle Zenas had some of the adventurous spirit of his forefathers, and wanted to go further west into Michigan. His mother, Adah Winsor Tinkham, having pioneered into this new country and knowing all the hardships of frontier life, refused to go, but after her death the eighty-five years old Daniel told his son that he was willing to go.

In 1852 they went to Buffalo, then boarded a steamboat for Michigan. Every one of the family was sick on the boat, except grandfather who stood the trip very well. The next year Grandfather died, not being able to withstand the malaria."

The Campbell Family

Sumner Gilbert Wood in his book, "Ulster Scots and Blandford Scouts", gives much of the story of the Campbells, calling them the most powerful and warlike clan in Scotland. In 1610 the Scots filled the most prosperous part of Ireland. They were for the most part poor, poorly fed, and "lived under the harrow of persecution, repression, danger, and temptation."

"But what of life? Ask the martyr, ask the Pilgrim of Plymouth; ask the Scotsman of Ulster." These Scotch Presbyterians were forbidden to use their meeting houses, and they put mighty emphasis on religion. These conditions "put several of us upon thoughts of transplanting ourselves into America, that we may enjoy there by the blessing of God, ease and quiet to our consciences."

Enduring "physical danger, the breaking up of a home, separation of dearest friends, a challenge of every kind of resource; risk of health and fortune, certainly of hardship, weariness, loneliness and unrest," yet in about 1720 seven hundred fifty Ulster Scots landed in Boston. They had little furniture, but they did bring spinning wheels and articles necessary for the culture of flax.

Early settlers in and around Boston were having their own difficulties in order to sustain life and had no desire to increase their hardships by extending help to this large group of newcomers, so they ordered the Ulster Scots to go further west. Gradually the Scots went west to Worcester and then searching for virgin soil settled in Blandford, Massachusetts.

During the time of Cromwell a large group of these persecuted Scotch Presbyterians were sent to America, and landed in Maine, many of them gradually reaching Massachusetts. However the family of David Campbell reached Blandford, he was there for some time as proven by deeds and his tombstone in the Blandford Cemetery.

From the Blandford Cemetery—

David Campbell, died Nov. 11, 1769, aged 58 years.

Nancy Campbell, died Jan. 26, 1759, aged 14 years.

Margaret Campbell, died 1759, aged 17 years.

In 1760 David Campbell had a well developed business, Corn mill, Saw mill and Bolting mill. He sold one-half of it to his son, James, who sold it back to his father in 1763. The mill buildings of David Campbell were located on an island in the river, and customers had to ford the river to reach the mill.

An inventory of the estate of David Campbell lists his dwelling house, farm, two mills and two saws; one hat and wearing apparel; one-half a pew in the meeting house; two Bibles and some other books.

"James Campbell located on a beautiful spot, a gem of a mill pond with a gorge below it."

The following is copied from the will of James Campbell of Indsburgh, Luzerne Co., Pa., late of Blandford, Mass., dated Apr. 4, 1803, probate Mar. 5, 1814, Bradford Co., Pa.

"I, James Campbell of Indsburgh — seriously considering the uncertainty of human life in the best, and more particularly my own declining health, do while in sound mind make this my last will and testament intending to dispose of all my worldly affairs, not as humour may prompt, but as justice and equity seem to direct.

The following is copied from a note made by Mrs. Roberts—"The following explanation from Clyde M. Campbell, Lansing, Mich., who worked long and hard until the work was accomplished. It is the same story my grandmother, Electa Campbell Winchester, related though we did not understand about the two Davids who were grandfather and grandson. Thus we skipped the two generations that made it seem impossible for David to have fought in those battles of Cromwell's time.

The copy given briefly—From 1546 to 1555 Andrew Campbell was locked in Hamilton Castle for preaching heresy at Glenluce, Scotland. He gave his estate of Skerrington to his brother-in-law, Charles Campbell, for breaking into the castle and releasing him.

His son Patrick, born 1544, was sent to Ulster, Ireland, by Queen Elizabeth of England. Patrick's son Hugh was born 1579, and Hugh's son David was the one who fought in the siege of Londonderry, and also in the battle of Dunbar in 1651. He was captured in that battle and sent to Maine (Great Isle). His son Hugh went back to Scotland and returned with three sons, Andrew of Mansfield, Conn., David, and a third who was killed by the Indians. It was James, son of this David, who went to Pennsylvania."

Haverley's History of Bradford Co., Penna.—"James Campbell, a native of Blandford, Mass., a soldier of the Revolutionary War, came in 1791 into the wilderness on Sugar Creek in Burlington Township, and his children were—John, James, David, Cephas, William, Eleanor, Rachel, Cynthia, Jane, Betsy, and Sally.

The Grinnell Family

History of the Grinnell Family in France, or Gr⁵n⁵oll⁵o as it was known, may be found in "Authentic Collection of Genealogical Histories of Noble and Titled Families of France" by M. De la Eamee.

A street in Paris still bears the name — Gronollo.

Pierre Gr⁵n⁵oll⁵o of noble birth, born about 1420 in France, married Mar. 15, 1509, Marie Perrier. He was collector of taxes in 1510. They had a son,—

Charles Gronollo, born about 1510, married Mar. 2, 1544, Jeanne de Cartulot, and they had Leonard, curate of Boyer; Gratton; and Joane who married Francis du Besc.

Gratton Gronollo, born 1550 son of Charles and Jeanne, judge for the crown at Tournurs, keeper of government salt stores, manager of the hospital at Tournurs, was Lord of Pimont and La Grange-Gourmond. In 1581 Gratton Gronollo married Margarite Quarre, also of noble birth, who died in 1625. Their children were—

Claude, an army officer, Lord and Counsellor in Parliament,

Joanne Gronollo, married Humbert Mabirot,

Jean Gronollo, Elio Gronollo,

Jacques Gronollo, priest at the Abbey of Cluny.

Jean Gronollo, son of Gratton and Margarite, was Lord of Pidmont and keeper of the government salt stores after the death of his father, as well as Counsellor to the king. He inherited from his parents the estate of Pimont and a residence at Tournurs. He was also the heir of his brother Claude. The name of his wife is not known. Their children were—

Jean, equerry, Lord of Pimont,

Matthew Gronollo, who came to America,

Pierre Gronollo, attorney of the bailiwick and City of Macon.

THE FIRST GRINNELL FAMILY IN AMERICA

I. Matthew Grinnell, born in Macon, France, in 1602-died in Newport, R. I., before 1643, was the son of Jean Gronollo. See "Protestant Emigrants to America" by Rev. Charles W. Baird. While in France he forsook the religion of his patrician forefathers, embraced the Protestant faith, and came to America.

In 1637 a small group of men with definite religious convictions were driven from Massachusetts because of their religious differences, and began the foundation of Newport, R. I. In 1638 Matthew Grinnell was admitted to the Newport settlement, which at that time was a thickly-wooded swamp, which required cutting down of trees, clearing away of dense underbrush and the pulling out of roots. After that gravel and sand were drawn in before the land could be used. Though enough to discourage a strong-hearted man, our founders had what was necessary to overcome discouragement as well as the ambition to carry through their determinations.

Of such material was Matthew Grinnell, but it would appear that his physical endurance was not equal to his ambition, for Nov. 10, 1643, Rose Grinnell, widow of Matthew, made an ante-nuptial agreement with Anthony Paine of Portsmouth. In that contract Rose Grinnell named her three sons—Matthew, Thomas and Daniel Grinnell. Mary Grinnell, daughter of Matthew and Rose, married John Manchester.

Anthony Paine died in 1649, and Rose Grinnell Paine married in 1650 James Weeden of Portsmouth.

On Dec. 16, 1673, Rose Grinnell Paine Weeden, a widow, sold 53 acres of land at Portsmouth to her son, Matthew Grinnell, in exchange for thirty pounds and the maintenance of his mother for life.

II. Daniel Grinnell, born 1638-died in Little Compton, R. I., after 1703, son of Matthew and Rose Grinnell, married Mary Wodell or Wordell, born Nov. 1640, daughter of William and Mary of Boston and Rhode Island. Daniel Grinnell was the constable in Portsmouth where they lived about 25 years before moving to Saybrook, Conn. They had — Daniel, Jonathan and Richard.

Jonathan Grinnell, son of Daniel and Mary, married in 1698, Abigail Ford, and they had — Hope, Sarah, Daniel, Mary, Jonathan, Stephen and Rebecca.

Jonathan Grinnell, Jr., son of Jonathan and Abigail, was born at Little Compton, Feb. 7, 1711, married Alice Mias born Feb. 13, 1710, and their children, all born in Little Compton, were—

Connecticut men in the Revolution — page 211, Amasa Grinnell.

Amasa Grinnell served six years in the Connecticut Line, Sixth Regt., Col. William Douglas, in the American Revolution, and was pensioned.

Amasa Grinnell was discharged near Detroit, Mich., and with several of his company started tramping through the wilderness for home. Poorly clad, foot sore, weary, and hungry they stopped one day at an Indian wigwam. Several Indians were there, and with them an Indian child who was playing with an apple. The apple rolled near one of the soldiers who immediately picked it up and ate it. Then sensing a hostile feeling among the Indians, the soldiers soon resumed their march toward home.

Fearing the Indians might follow them, that night they wrapped their blankets—not around themselves—but around some logs, and then hid themselves in the brush. Later the Indians attacked the blankets, the soldiers were ready with their guns, and succeeded in driving away the Indians. Such were the hardships endured by this band of men while trying to reach home after their discharge from the service of their country. Only a few survived, but Amasa Grinnell lived to tell his story to his children and grandchildren.

John Grinnell and Alanson Tinkham, the son of Daniel and Adah Tinkham, came to Shelby, Orleans Co., N. Y., in the spring of 1820, and settled in the southern part of the town. They cleared the land, built log houses, and kept bachelor's quarters until autumn, when their fathers, Isaiah and Daniel, brought their families with an ox team from Spafford, N. Y.

John Grinnell lived for thirty-five years on the original settlement, lot 59, Range 2, one mile south of the Methodist Church, then moved to East Shelby-Millville road, where he died in 1888. He was agent for the Holland Land Company in that section, and owned large tracts of land which he sold at a good advance in price. He lived a pioneer's life enduring many hardships. He helped his family and accumulated a good estate. At that time wolves were often encountered, the wild animals frequently molested stock, and even the bears would steal pigs.

He was a kind energetic man, and assisted new settlers in making payments and building their log huts, many of which had only a blanket for a door.

Jerry Crane located later near him on an adjoining farm. Major Grinnell settled about one mile east of him on a north and south road, opposite a cemetery. A large sugar bush was a source of comfort and profit.

When Amanda Alcott was ten years old, she moved with her parents from Colebrook, Conn., to begin a new home in Sherburne, Chenango Co., N. Y. In 1830 with their small children Daniel and Amanda Alcott Page moved to Shelby, Orleans Co. At the age of eighty-two she went with her son to Thetford, Michigan, in 1879. She often told her grandchildren that she moved into new country three times in her life.

Her granddaughter, Mary Timmerman Grinnell, was thrilled with the stories told by her grandmother, recorded them for future generations, and some are published for you.

Amanda Page said that she came by way of the Erie Canal, and that her father settled in the vicinity of Oak Orchard Creek, because he was so fond of fish. They bought land, cleared a place for their home, built a log cabin, and experienced the hardships of pioneer life — fever and ague in summer, snow-bound in winter, children walked a long distance to school carrying bells to frighten away the wild animals, and occasionally a hungry bear helped himself to a pig.

Money was scarce, markets at a distance, and they produced little that would bring money. It required a whole day or more to drive an ox team to the mill to have corn and wheat ground so it could be used for food. Many times only a small amount was taken, and this put into both ends of a sack and thrown over a horse in front of the rider. Grandmother Amanda also told of making "Black Salts" from some kind of ashes and taking them to Rochester to sell. Grandmother was active, had a keen mind, was cheerful and amiable, and never spoke ill of any one.

Daughter Annis walked a mile through the woods to school, and later continued her education in the Millville Academy. She taught district schools when it required nerve and tact to control the 'big boys', who prided themselves on "turning teacher out", yet she was one of the most successful teachers of her day. In 1852 she went to the Dansville Sanatorium and studied their methods of treating without medicine. She became an excellent nurse, successfully treated her own family and many outside of her family, and was a kind indulgent mother.
